However, the global and cultural expectations placed on leaders in all spheres of vocation demand that Christians have a unique answer that draws from our understanding of the nature of God, reflects the person of Christ, and is guided by the Holy Spirit. This is the conversation that the Theology of Leadership Journal hopes to spark. Much like the journal's logo, it is the editors' hope that theology and leadership will create a spectrum that bleeds into each other.

The Church as a Context for Leadership: 2. Leadership for Unity. Ephesians 4:1-16 - Unity within the Body is an ambitious endeavor. Unity is difficult to achieve and fragile in nature. - Attitudes of Unity are discussed (vs. 3-4). What manner of leadership would be necessary to develop such traits in followers? - Absolutes of Unity are cemented (vs. 4-6).

A theological treatment of leadership is offered through an exegesis and socio-rhetorical critical analysis of the Christological hymn of Philippians 2:5-11, along with the application of the common language in this theological treatment.

TOWARD A THEOLOGY OF LEADERSHIP

There may be local variations of church leadership because this is only a basic pattern; every detail is not prescribed in Scripture. The basic pattern found in the New Testament is that every church should have a plurality of godly male elders who are responsible for leading and teaching the church and godly deacons who are responsible for facilitating the more physical aspects of church ministry.
