The Beretta Model 1934 (like the 35) was a top-grade gun, and was practically without rivals in its functional class. Despite criticisms due for the most part to the Italian vice of denigrating its own national product and revering the import, a Beretta automatic pistol was an attractive spoil of war for the soldiers of all armies that crossed our land during the tragic years of the last war ...

Beretta Web - From Pistol Model 1931 to Model 1934

The Beretta 1934 was designed to handle the .380 cartridge from the beginning, unlike many .32 ACP pistols that were later modified to accept the .380 ACP cartridge. The pistol became the standard issue of the Italian Army. The 1934 also became a popular police service pistol as is often the case with successful military designs. Whatever else may be said concerning the Beretta pistol and its ...

The Beretta 1934 - Small Arms Review magazine

Today we're going to take a look at the Beretta Model 1934. While the one shown here is not too far from the century mark in age, you'll note that it shares some of the same features in the Beretta 92-series, like the 92FS and M9 pistols. For example, the M1934 features an open top slide. That generous cutout not only reduces mass to reduce weight movement during recoil of this blowback ...
