ALL THE TALENT IN THE WORLD is the fictional story of two high school young men, one of whom becomes an attorney and the other, a National Basketball Association (NBA) star. During the next ten years of maturing, the two become involved with scams, con artists, misadventure and murder. The fast-paced plot is subtly packed with actual facts and data-based statistics. There is never a reference to race, curse words, or ghetto slang. The novel positively highlights life-enhancing family values and the enormous importance of education. It is also written as an easy read for coaches and staff.
